Business Opportunities.

There is a tide in the affairs of men, which at its full, will sweep on like a flood, and we must ride it or be drowned. It is at

TALKS WITH CITIZENS.

An Old Citizen.—"I had not been out to the Agricultural Park for over a year until one day this week, when I rode out there over the street car line, and actually in going down Figueroa street I lost my bearings and thought the line must have been changed and that I was traveling a new route, it's been built up along that street. There are some nice homes out there now, and it was astonishing to me to see how business is trending in that direction. The butcher and the baker and the druggist are all provided for—and the saloon—no, sir; the saloon you cannot get out of sight of here in Los Angeles in whatever direction you go. I think it is a shame the way in which they are multiplied. I tell you, I think, there is something rotten in Denmark, or it would not be allowed."

A Phillips, Excursion Agent.—"Our business has so developed that it has been found necessary to transfer our business to more commodious premises, and henceforth the head office will be at 116 West First street, in the Nadeau block, the present premises on Main street being retained as a branch office. As I do, the constantly increasing inquiries being made in the East regarding Southern California, it amuses me to hear the remarks being made by our dry cleaners who evidently cannot see any farther than the end of their noses, and richly deserve to lose what money they have accumulated, not by judicious business management, but by miserly hoarding every cent they could lay their hands on. The coming fall and winter will witness as large an influx of visitors as last year, not probably so largely afflicted with the speculative manner as the previous visitors, but prepared to invest in fair rates, besides bringing the community by spending the winter in our midst. In the East a good story is told on Southern California that again illustrates the wonderful values here. Dr. David Hostetter has long been noted as one of the most careful money-makers imaginable. A number of years ago the firm of Hostetter & Smith had a bad account in Southern California for a sale of bladders. They could not get any money, and the only way out of it seemed to be to take a piece of waste land in liquidation of the debt. Of course, it seemed little to get for $1000 worth of bladders and whisky, but it was all they could get. Some months ago Dr. Hostetter came out here for the benefit of his health, and would you believe it, he sold the worst half of that piece of ground for $80,000."

H. B. Packard.—"Plenty of California money is invested in mining industries down in Old Mexico, and in my opinion that is the mining industry of the future. I base that judgment, not on the exceeding richness of the ores there, but the cheapness of taking it out. It takes no more to handle an $5 ore than it does a $20 ore, here, I verily believe. The Mexicans live cheap, and work for what appears to us to be low wages, and are expert miners. Recently there have been many reports sent abroad that numerous very old and rich mines in Mexico that had been abandoned decades ago, had been rediscovered. I cannot say I put much faith in such reports, because the Mexicans knew how to mine, and did not abandon a property until it gave them no more. In instances where a mine was abandoned in that country because the water came into it too fast for the bucket brigade of those times, but such a mine, if it is a good one, however, an immense amount of low-grade ore in Mexico that has not been touched, and a large quantity of such ore can now be worked profitably that could not be worked in this country at all."

Law and Order.—"The Law and Order League, as the papers call it, is making very good progress," said one of the gentlemen who is taking an interest in the movement yesterday. "It is one of those reform movements that will grow as its objects become better known, as its principles are such that every good citizen will be compelled to give it his aid and countenance. No, it is not in any sense a secret organization, but it is in its incipient, and our plans have not yet been fully matured, consequently it would be very foolish in rushing before the people until we get everything in shape. Just as soon as everything is ready the papers will be given the news, and we hope to have their support. We have not yet formulated any rules or regulations, but every day we are having citizens coming to us for information, and in the great majority of cases they ask to be notified when they can come in and join the league."

Potent Agent.—"Some men, and women, too, for the matter of that, have a craze for inventing, and upon every article they cast their eyes they have ideas in a more or less crude state as to how it might be improved and rendered of greater utility to the user. Not one-tenth of 1 per cent of the patents registered ever come to anything, or do any good for any one, save enabling the inventor to spend his superfluous cash in an innocent manner in making innumerable working models of his brain's off-spring. It is said, I know not with what truth, that quite recently a man in this southern country, the father of a large family of girls, was granted a patent for a front gate. It is ingeniously arranged, so that when a young man leans on it after dark a couple of iron clamps spring out and hold him to the gate like a vise. The idea is that rheumatic or consumptive fathers, unable to run, and unable to get their work in good style. With this style gate in the front garden they can take their time in kicking the young men of the neighborhood who come mooning around after the precious girls."

A Cosmopolitan.—"I have traveled all over the United States, and pretty generally in Europe, and I must say that the Grand Opera-house, since it has been remodeled, is about as handsome a building as you will find anywhere outside of the very largest cities. It is a pleasure to spend an evening at such a house, with a good play upon the boards. It is creditable to Los Angeles that she has such a fine temple for her people who patronize the drama and opera. It is a great change from what I found when I was here six years ago, when the poor old Parnassus Hall was the best that Los Angeles could afford in this line. It is pretty difficult to realize that this is the Los Angeles of those days."

Saloon Talk.—"There is no disguising the fact that the anti-saloon feeling is growing every day," was the remark of a well-known citizen yesterday. "By that I do not mean absolute prohibition, by any means, but a large proportion of the people who see no harm in an occasional drink, or the use of wines in families, are becoming uneasy at the great increase of saloons in the city, and the growing power and influence of this element in politics. There is no question but what it is a very serious danger, and if not checked will grow beyond control. High license is regarded as one of the best means to this end, and is gaining converts every day. This will undoubtedly be one of the main issues in the next municipal campaign."

A New-comer.—"Well, if this is a fair sample of Southern California's summer climate, it's good enough for me. No one has any business to complain of such days as we have had this week, for though the sun is rather warm, there is such a splendid breeze stir that it is perfectly comfortable in the shade. Southern California has a good deal of capital in her climate. I have traveled about pretty generally, and I never came across any that was a better than the climate right here in Los Angeles. Southern Spain and Italy? No, the weather there is not as good as it is here, take it the year round, I should judge. I've been here since March, and I've found it all right."

A Visitor.—"I wish that we Americans could learn to take our pleasures as sensibly as the Germans do. I did enjoy going to the theater while I was in Germany, for we went early and came home early—everything all over by 10 o'clock. They do not turn night into day as we do. People there do not dress for such occasions, as we do. They go right in from the street, and make themselves at home. The ladies take off their bonnets, and everybody goes in for comfort and a good time. If the play is a very lengthy one the theater is opened earlier. No going home at midnight, as we do in this country, feeling the loss of sleep and half used up the next day."

An Old Politician.—"I think that the free-trade policy of the Democratic party will do more to give us a strong Republican majority than anything else. The laboring men of America are not fools, but intelligent thinkers, and are capable of reasoning and forming their own opinions. The masses among the Democracy do not believe in Cleveland nor in his policy. The majority of the American people are in favor of protection, and they are going to vote for it. I believe that Gen. Harrison will be our next President, and he's all right."

HORACE BELL.

He Pleads Guilty to Caning Hamlet

The irrepressible Horace Bell appeared before Justice Taney in the Township Court yesterday and pleaded guilty to the charge of having assaulted Hamlet R. Brown in the Mayor's office on Thursday last. The facts in the case have already been made public, and although a number of witnesses had been subpoenaed and were in attendance yesterday, their evidence was not taken when the defendant in the case entered his plea of guilty. In mitigation of sentence Horace Bell called G. W. Givner, C. D. Weatherman, and for H. M. Jones, and $7500 the provocation he had received during many years past, and which culminated in the insult offered to him in the Mayor's office last week. "These are times," said Bell, "when a man's manhood demands some show of resentment. The Court inflicted a fine of $5, which Bell immediately paid, and the law was vindicated, even if Brown, with his aching neck, was not satisfied."

LOST OR STOLEN.

A Teacher Has Had Luck in Pasadena.—Miss Jennie Dixon, one of the delegates to the teachers' convention, came in from Pasadena yesterday and took a hack to Brooklyn Heights. She returned to the Southern Pacific depot to take the 12:40 train for the north, and when she put her hand in her duster-pocket her purse was not there. She has no idea whether she lost it or it was stolen. It contained $30 in cash, a Wells-Fargo receipt for $100, and a valuable bracelet set with diamonds and rubies. A description has been given to the police.

After Me.—Frank N. Townsend has instituted suit against Thomas Kelley to recover a sum of money due on a contract entered into in November, 1887, by the terms of which the plaintiff agreed to grade and improve a certain portion of Flower street. The stipulated sum which the defendant agreed to pay was $500, and of this sum no portion has been paid. A claim is now made for $500, being amount due, $100 being a reasonable fee for the attorney's fee, and $700 by the plaintiff for recording a lien against the property.

Wilmington Club.—Friday night the old Wilmington Republican Club reorganized. The club now numbers 60 members. The following members were elected as officers: A. Bailey, president; Messrs. Seaman, Kennedy and P. Barr, vice-presidents; J. E. C. Johnson, secretary; Joe P. Sylva, treasurer; V. Truman, sergeant-at-arms. After the election of officers, speeches were made by different members.

A LUCKY THAIL.

Dean Ritz: It affords me great pleasure to send you this voluntary statement of my experience in using the medicine of J. S. Sarsaparilla. For the past five years I have been troubled with an excruciating skin disease, and within the past two years it has brought in with it a thoroughly disordered stomach, including loss of appetite and distressing constipation in the chest and kidneys, and boils around my neck and face. I have tried several remedies which are advertised as specially for the liver, and never could get more than temporary relief of about a week or two. I was told of J. S. Sarsaparilla, and while taking the first bottle I became convinced of its merits for I could feel it was working a change in me. I have taken five bottles, and during that time my troubles have left me. Everything is working full and regular, and I feel like a new man. You are free to publish this in the way you see fit, or you can refer whom you please to me.

"The Substance of Things Hoped for,"
The Evidence of Things Unseen.

There are two different kinds of advertising: The merchant who advertises because he has something of interest to impart to the general public, and the merchant who, on account of a waning trade, employs the agency of the newspaper to follow in the wake of a successful competitor—always just a little bit behind.

Acquired faith differs from the genuine article. Nineteen-tenths of the people of every nationality would rather see a thing and know it to be exactly as described than believe it to be the truth from mere hearsay.

A BURNT CHILD DREADS THE FIRE.

Now, suppose, for example, we tried to make the people believe that we did more business than all the other houses in this city combined; well, they wouldn't believe it. Suppose, again, we said our sales people numbered about 175; they wouldn't believe it. Why? Because both of these propositions are improbable. The people, one and all, can easily see for themselves that if one firm of one or more members would or could do the entire business of the town, then it would control everything and become a self-constituted monopoly. Competition is the life of trade. The latent powers of a merchant are brought into full play when the exigencies of the occasion demand it, provided that he has the ability. "Business is business." Mere advertising will not bring about desired results unless values back it. Value is what the people want, and value is what they are going to get, or else know the reason why. Visit 7 and 9 North Spring street and get the worth of your money.

GEN. ARTHUR L. PEARSON, Commander-in-Chief of the Union Veteran League of the United States, who supported Cleveland in 1884, has returned to the Republican party.

The American party is said to favor the nomination of Senator Stanford for President. Should that be done, it would not take Stanford long to count his votes.

The local Prohibition organ comes out strongly against the proposed law and order movement, which is being organized by clergymen and others. The Prohibitionists would rather a man should go to—Hades, than go to Heaven by any other road than theirs.

The case against the Chicago dynamite plotters begins to look very ugly. This is a species of crime toward which no mercy should be shown. The man who will do such things is simply a dangerous beast, who should be expeditiously removed.

We are pleased to see that our local contemporaries are disposed to be active in urging upon citizens the development of our resources. We cannot all agree in political matters, but we ought all to join hands and work heartily with one accord in this direction.

CAMPERS, hunters and others should be very careful with fire in the hills during this dry season. A small spark may cause thousands of dollars' damage. Smith's Mountain, in San Diego county, was burning last week, and may be still afire.

It is reported that a young infantry officer of the French army has invented a kind of military microphone, by means of which the approach or movement of troops, as well as their probable numbers, may be gauged. If modern improvements continue at the present rate, battles will soon be fought by touching a button at headquarters, upon information conveyed from a balloon.

SAN FRANCISCO had an outside land boom last year, which has flattened out, as it deserved to do. Property that a year ago was considered a first-class bargain at $4000 now goes begging at $1500. Yet inside business property has advanced in price. This is about the way it is in Los Angeles. These wildcat land booms only impede the solid progress of a section, and the best way to treat them is to nip them in the incipient stage.

The eight Hazen brothers, who formed a brass band and went through New York State in a log cabin, playing for William Henry Harrison, are all alive, and most of them in Fond du Lac county, Wis. Their ages range from sixty to eighty, but they are in vigorous health, and propose to whoop things for the grandsons.

What has caused this great commotion, all the country through? It is the fall of a rolling pin. For Tippecanoe and Morton, too. And with them we'll beat old Bandana! And with them we'll beat old Bandana!

The Mills Bill.

A correspondent at Covina sends us the following letter:

"I am not a Democrat and am against the Mills Bill, but like to see everybody treated fairly. You say the Mills Bill is a free-trade bill and that the democracy is for free trade. But the Mills Bill proposes only a reduction of 10 per cent. in the tariff, leaving a tariff on goods which is a higher tariff than the commission appointed by a Republican Administration recommended a few years ago. Please be kind enough to correct this error."

Our correspondent is greatly in error, in supposing that the Mills Bill provides only for a horizontal reduction of 10 per cent. on the tariff. Were such the case, there would be little objection urged against the measure by reasonable men. It goes, however, far beyond this. On a number of articles the reduction is 25 per cent.; on others, from 30 to 40 per cent.; on several, 50 per cent.; while, on over 20 articles, the entire duty is removed.

As instances of articles of which we can produce all we need and more, and which, consequently, should be well protected, we may mention bacon, the duty on which Mr. Mills proposes to reduce from 2 cents a pound to nothing; beef, from 1 cent a pound to nothing; beefwax, from 20 per cent. to nothing; blacksmiths' hammers, from 25 cents a pound to 15 cents a pound, a drop of 40 per cent.; borax, from 3 and 5 cents a pound to nothing; bricks, from 20 per cent. to nothing; hemp, from $15 and $25 per cent. to nothing; jute, from 20 per cent. to nothing; pig lead, from 24 cents to 14 cents per pound, a difference of 54 per cent.; wrought nails, from 4 cents per pound to 24 cents per pound, a difference of 54 per cent.; needles, from 25 per cent. to nothing; pork, from 1 cent per pound to nothing; railroad steel, from $17 per ton to $11 per ton, a difference of 39 per cent.; tallow, from 1 cent per pound to nothing; linen thread, from 40 per cent. to 25 per cent., a difference of 37 per cent., and last, but not least, wool, from 10 and 12 cents per pound to nothing.

Our correspondent will probably admit that, if this is not a free-trade bill, it comes near enough to free trade for all practical purposes. Those who call it by that name are certainly not guilty of any very serious exaggeration.

Immigration to California.

The California State Board of Trade is doing a vast amount of good work for Central and Northern California. Circulars extolling the advantages of those sections have been sent to over 12,000 farmers throughout the Union, whose names have been secured, and an immense amount of correspondence is pouring in. In its efforts, the board has the great advantage of the active cooperation of the wealthy Southern Pacific Company, each of whose eastern employees is an active immigration agent for "the counties north of Kern."

Referring to the work of the State Board, the San Francisco Alta says:

"The demand for homes will be very largely confined to Central and Northern California." It rests with our citizens to say in how far this prediction shall be fulfilled. While the climatic advantages of Southern California are undoubtedly much superior to those which our northern neighbors can offer, we have to contend with the impression—founded to some extent on fact—that agricultural lands in this section are high in price. It should be our constant mission to show that, in view of the productive capacity of our lands and the demand for their products, these prices are not relatively high, in comparison with prices asked elsewhere.

Another Democrat Gone.

Hon. George Q. Richmond of Pueblo, Colo., was a member of the Democratic Central Committee of that State at the last Presidential election, and aided, as far as possible, the election of Cleveland. He has been spending several months in Europe, and has seen the effects of free trade and heard the views entertained in England upon the coming election, and the result has been to convert him to the Republican faith. Following is an extract from his letter to the chairman of the Democratic State Committee:

PUEBLO (Colo.), June 22, 1888.
 MY DEAR SIR: Your notice of a meeting of the Democratic Central Committee, to be held July 26th, is at hand. I was not aware that my name appeared as a member of said committee; if so, it had better be dropped, and I hereby tender my resignation. I am not for New England and against Old England, and I am not for America against Great Britain and all foreign nations—for my country first, last and always. I prefer the Republic of the United States to the Cobden Club of England. I relish the products of American farms under protection, but dislike the products of English farms under free trade. I am opposed to any measure, called by any name, that places wool, salt, lumber, hemp, flax, peas, beans, cabbage, potato, fruit and vegetables on the free list, while England protects wheat, corn, tobacco, tea, raisins, coffee, cocoa, prunes, plums, beer, wine and spirits.

I am opposed to Chinese cheap labor, and therefore oppose free trade that permits the fruits of labor in China to come in competition with the fruits of American labor.

I am for American labor, American farm products, American manufactures, American institutions, American fishermen, anything and everything America produces that comes in competition with the products of foreign countries. Under a protective tariff, Bismarck says: "Germany fears nobody but God," and such is the feeling I would have every American, native and foreign born, entertain of these United States.

Pardon me for this long letter, but fearing you might not understand I deemed it prudent to write that my letter would have no uncertain sound. Respectfully yours,
 G. Q. RICHMOND.

We recently noted an instance of Mr. Morton's honorable, high-minded action, in paying a large amount of money for which he was not legally liable. The record of Gen. Harrison, "the oppressor of the workingman," as some of the Democrats are fond of calling him, is no less creditable in this direction. In Harrison's early days, before he became prominent in politics, a contractor employed to build his house in Indianapolis was paid in full and ran away three weeks before the house was completed, leaving the men unpaid. When Gen. Harrison heard this, he had the pay-roll made out and paid the claims of the men, seventeen in all, in full, although he was under no obligation to do it. The Republican party has reason to be proud of both its candidates. They are gentlemen in the highest sense of the word—chevaliers sans peur et sans reproche.

The Democrats made a good deal of noise last night, but they seemed to have a very confused idea of what they were yelling for. However, they exercised their lungs, and a considerable amount of money was put into circulation among the liquor dealers.

THERE are now nearly 1,500,000 organized wage workers in the land. The Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel-workers control 50,000 men. Cleveland will not receive many votes from these people.

The speeches which Gen. Harrison has delivered to delegations of visitors and other bodies since his nomination have been uniformly admirable in taste and spirit.

CALIFORNIA fruit continues to fetch very good prices at the Chicago auction sales.

THE SAUNTERER.

Children are very wise thinkers sometimes, and their deductions are often not only quaint but wisely suggestive to older heads. Of all things that I have always disliked is the long-winded prayer of many a clergyman, not made up of humble petitions—for those I do not deprecate, but of long rehearsed events, as if the preacher were airing his long knowledge of what was transpiring about him. Such alleged prayers seem to me irreverent displays of vanity. Some little time ago a minister was giving a sermon of miles away from his congregation, and he rehearsed incidents enough for the ground-work of a good-sized novel. There were these things: "I was once in a restaurant, where there were those who had been restless, weary young children. There were irreverent ones, who wished that prayers could be stricken out from public worship. There were those who had vowed to forget what the minister was saying, and to lift up their own hearts in humble and silent petition to the Father's glory. But at length, like every earthly prayer, and other services were ended, and the people went out into the sunshine of the day, rejoicing in the peaceful and silent benediction. Before we walked a bright-eyed, thoughtful-faced little girl, about 14 years of age, looking into that of his papa's. Very thoughtfully he walked for a time, as if pondering some all-absorbing theme. At last he lifted his face to his papa's as he asked:

"Papa, may God take THE TIMES?"

"Why, no, my son; I guess not," said papa.

"Well, I just thought not," said the young Solomon, "cos if he did the minister would not had to pray him all the news, as he did this morning."

The grasses are looking very brown now. The grasses are dead and the splendor of the wild flowers is all gone. But right in the heart of town, with our numberless shade trees and green lawns, we lose sight of all this and see only a gleam of the summer. We are so used to the shade, and catch the wandering sea breezes and rejoice in the absence of sultriness, cyclone and heat, that we do not realize the fact that we get fresh breaths from the outside world daily, and summer here is very fair.

I saw a sorry sight last Sunday evening as I was returning from church—it was that of a pretty-faced young girl, about 14 years of age, standing near her home on the street corner talking and laughing with some half a dozen young hoodlums in the freest and most careless way. There is no state of evil upon her. I know of it, but she is in the way of temptation. What could the mother be thinking of to let her young daughter stand there so boldly with a group of boisterous young men? Girls, you cannot be too careful of that one priceless attribute, modesty and purity of character. The street corner is no place for the young girl to meet her acquaintances of the other sex, and to linger with them for social intercourse, and the wise mother will see to it that her daughter is not found there.

PROTECTION AND PROSPERITY.

Cogent Reasons for Preferring the Republican Cause.

Following are extracts from the speech of S. F. Spencer to the Irish-American Republican Club, delivered on the evening of Thursday, the 13th last:

The lessons of our history attest nothing more absolutely than the fact that prosperous and protected manufactures make prosperous and happy nations. They have thrived or languished. Before the tariff of 1824 our manufacturing industries were prostrate. What was the condition of agriculture? The floor of the House Henry Clay declared that "successive untimely crops of grain had perished on our farms, and that there was 'an universal complaint of the want of employment and the consequent reduction of wages.'"

Those who defend the tariff which defended in 1824 the system of protection in the interest of agriculture, speaking of the same period prior to the tariff of 1824, said: "In short, every seven years, which was searched by our intelligent merchants, and all combined did not furnish a market adequate to the surplus productions. Every Ohio farmer longed to see the new corn consequent on this state of things."

Your father year after year of wheat stood unharvested, and when the news of separating the grain from the straw, so low was it reduced in comparison with manufactured articles that I knew 40 bushels of wheat would not pay the cost of such was the state of things in the western country prior to and at the time of the tariff of 1824.

This condition of things throughout the country brought about the protective tariff of 1824, under which all the industries of the people revived and which followed were years of prosperity and development. Of the seven years which followed, Henry Clay said in 1832: "If any man could show me that when the tariff of the greatest prosperity which the people have enjoyed since the establishment of the present constitution, it would be exactly that period of seven years—British followed the passage of the tariff of 1824."

The tariff of 1828 being still more protective than the tariff of 1824, followed with which the mass of the people were in the operation and effects of the previous one. Labor was in demand at higher prices, and without the aid of the tariff, existence, bringing to farmers a ready and eager market for productions that would not bear transportation to a distance. It was a direct result of the tariff that the tariff of 1828 was passed.

There are now nearly 1,500,000 organized wage workers in the land. The Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel-workers control 50,000 men. Cleveland will not receive many votes from these people.

Labor was in demand at higher prices, and without the aid of the tariff, existence, bringing to farmers a ready and eager market for productions that would not bear transportation to a distance. It was a direct result of the tariff that the tariff of 1828 was passed.

There are now nearly 1,500,000 organized wage workers in the land. The Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel-workers control 50,000 men. Cleveland will not receive many votes from these people.

The speeches which Gen. Harrison has delivered to delegations of visitors and other bodies since his nomination have been uniformly admirable in taste and spirit.

THE SAUNTERER.

Children are very wise thinkers sometimes, and their deductions are often not only quaint but wisely suggestive to older heads. Of all things that I have always disliked is the long-winded prayer of many a clergyman, not made up of humble petitions—for those I do not deprecate, but of long rehearsed events, as if the preacher were airing his long knowledge of what was transpiring about him. Such alleged prayers seem to me irreverent displays of vanity. Some little time ago a minister was giving a sermon of miles away from his congregation, and he rehearsed incidents enough for the ground-work of a good-sized novel. There were these things: "I was once in a restaurant, where there were those who had been restless, weary young children. There were irreverent ones, who wished that prayers could be stricken out from public worship. There were those who had vowed to forget what the minister was saying, and to lift up their own hearts in humble and silent petition to the Father's glory. But at length, like every earthly prayer, and other services were ended, and the people went out into the sunshine of the day, rejoicing in the peaceful and silent benediction. Before we walked a bright-eyed, thoughtful-faced little girl, about 14 years of age, looking into that of his papa's. Very thoughtfully he walked for a time, as if pondering some all-absorbing theme. At last he lifted his face to his papa's as he asked:

"Papa, may God take THE TIMES?"

"Why, no, my son; I guess not," said papa.

"Well, I just thought not," said the young Solomon, "cos if he did the minister would not had to pray him all the news, as he did this morning."

The grasses are looking very brown now. The grasses are dead and the splendor of the wild flowers is all gone. But right in the heart of town, with our numberless shade trees and green lawns, we lose sight of all this and see only a gleam of the summer. We are so used to the shade, and catch the wandering sea breezes and rejoice in the absence of sultriness, cyclone and heat, that we do not realize the fact that we get fresh breaths from the outside world daily, and summer here is very fair.

I saw a sorry sight last Sunday evening as I was returning from church—it was that of a pretty-faced young girl, about 14 years of age, standing near her home on the street corner talking and laughing with some half a dozen young hoodlums in the freest and most careless way. There is no state of evil upon her. I know of it, but she is in the way of temptation. What could the mother be thinking of to let her young daughter stand there so boldly with a group of boisterous young men? Girls, you cannot be too careful of that one priceless attribute, modesty and purity of character. The street corner is no place for the young girl to meet her acquaintances of the other sex, and to linger with them for social intercourse, and the wise mother will see to it that her daughter is not found there.

THE SUPERVISORS.

Constables' Fees and County Jail.

The Board of County Supervisors met Friday morning in the old courthouse, a full board being present, and proceeded with business as a board of equalization. The Committee on Jail and Constables submitted their report as follows:

Your committee, to whom was referred certain matters appertaining to the fees of constables, and the food supplied to the prisoners in the County Jail, report as follows: The said constables, after that investigation there has, in their opinion, been numerous illegal arrests made by constables in this city, which, it appears to your committee, could not have been made for any other purpose than for accumulating illegal fees against the county, whereby unoffending citizens have been unwarrantably deprived of their liberty and rights. Your committee cannot ascribe such conduct to ignorance.

Your committee further say that upon investigation they find the quality of food furnished by the Sheriff of the county to the prisoners in the County Jail to be wholesome and abundant; that it is not intended, nor is it expected, that the prisoners confined therein shall receive first-class hotel fare, but that it should be a simple temptation to tramps and vagrants, and all such characters as are inclined to earn their livelihood by honest labor, to break into prison in order to secure such quarters.

In view of the continued and persistent practice on the part of the Sheriff of the county, to present and prefer charges against petty alleged offenders, and oftentimes bringing about their conviction, not so much in our opinion, to enforce the law in good faith, but rather for the grossly improper purpose of securing the allowance to themselves of illegal fees, we recommend that your honorable board take some steps that will, if possible, put a stop to such nefarious practice, which, we believe, often results in unjust, improper and illegal punishment of individuals, and is perpetrated at enormous expense to the county. It is difficult to determine the best course to pursue in such matters, but this flagrant abuse of the power of arrest has now been pursued so long and persistently, and has resulted in such great expense to the county, that while we are at a loss to point out a remedy for the evil, we do, nevertheless, most earnestly recommend that some radical course be adopted, which, if possible, will curtail, if not altogether put a stop to, such practices.

W. T. MARTIN,
J. W. YENDEL,
Committee.

The board adjourned until July 14th, at 10 a.m.

The Board of Supervisors met yesterday in the old courthouse, pursuant to adjournment, a full board and clerk being present. On motion of Supervisor Venable, the Clerk was instructed to advertise until Wednesday 18th for bids for taking down the windmill, tank and tower at the poor farm, transporting the same to the poor farm, and erecting the same at the poor farm. Petitions for the annexation of the Anaheim and Fairview school districts were read. A remonstrance against any such action being taken was also read. Mr. Moore and Dr. Gardner testified in support of the petition and Dr. Kellogg in remonstrance. The petitions were granted. Certificates, exhibits and report of the Monrovia school district filed, showing the district had voted to raise by special tax $1200 to pay teachers' salary, etc. Action was deferred until the October session.

The following communication was read and ordered filed:

Gentlemen: Having read the report of your committee relative to certain charges made by myself and others against the constabulary and conduct of the jail, I would answer in justice to myself and others from whom you have not heard, but whom I could produce. I protest that the whole proceeding to date against me and others has been a star-chamber character, ex-parte and unjust. I had no opportunity to present witnesses or offer proof. The investigation was conducted by a substantiating the charges. I could at that time, when the charges were made, have proved every word and more, too, than I said, substantiating positively.

I had many other cases besides my own, yet your committee deliberately, without giving me and others our right to prove our charges, palliates the distinct charges against the conduct of the jail, in the face of a sworn statement, ex-parte, censures the constabulary, declares their acts pernicious, outrageous, violative of liberty, etc., yet as a committee of your body, custodians of the humblest citizens' rights, confessing that these outrages, that the county is being grossly, illegally and criminally mulcted in thousands of dollars monthly, that they can suggest no remedy. A remarkable proceeding, is it not?

Respectfully, C. B. RICHARDSON.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

An Important Meeting of That Body.

The Board of Health met Friday afternoon in the Mayor's office, with Mayor Workman in the chair, and Messrs. Humphreys, Hanley and Gibbs and Health Officer Reese in attendance. Mr. Collins was the only member absent.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved, after which the Mayor called on Dr. Reese for a report about the smallpox. The Doctor said that there was not a case in the pesthouse, and that the health of the city was very good. In regard to the accounts, Dr. Reese said that it would be very difficult to find out what would be the proper proportion for the county to pay, but he had figured up the cost of patients at $3 per day, which would make those from the county cost $654.

Mayor Workman said that this was nothing to what the county should contribute, as about $15,000 had been expended last year and $10,000 this season. Finally, after much discussion, on motion of Mr. Humphreys the Mayor and Health Officer were instructed to confer with the Board of Supervisors, and see whether they could not be induced to pay at least a quarter of the total expense. Mr. Hanley mentioned the meeting by suggesting that the Supervisors be invited to come in on the new hospital, pay its share of the cost of the building and the expense of running it. The amendment was accepted, and the motion as amended passed unanimously.

A petition was received from the property owners on New Depot street, asking that it be sprinkled. Granted. A communication was received from Alfred Moore protesting against a sprinkling hydrant being placed in front of his place on Mission road. The superintendent was instructed to have the hydrant placed 100 yards beyond Moore's house, if it can be done without extending the pipe.

The Mayor stated that a communication had been received from the City Water Company offering to put up sprinkling hydrants free of charge where needed, keep the same in repair, and furnish water for $4.50 per month.

After debate it was decided, on motion of Mr. Hanley, to recommend to the Council that the proposition be accepted for eight months out of the year, commencing with the sprinkling season.

Mr. Hanley said that the people on North Workman street had been cut off from water for some time by the grading of that street, and that great damage was being done to their property.

Downey avenue, and the attention of the companies was also called to this. Mr. Hanley called attention to the lack of fire hydrants all over East Los Angeles, and the Chief of the fire department was instructed to investigate the matter and report to the Fire Commissioners. A number of bills were read, approved and ordered filed. The bill of McNeill, for removing dead animals, caused the usual discussion and went over for one week to give that gentleman time to find out the names of parties who refused to pay for the service. On motion of Mr. Humphreys, the City Attorney, Mr. McNeill and the Health Officer were requested to look over the ordinances and draw up one covering the matter and providing proper penalties for its violation. A communication was received from Francis Bates, calling attention to an old horse at large on Boyle Heights, which was referred to Humane Officer Wright. Adjourned.

BUCHER ANSCHLAG.

His Old Attorney Has to Sue Him for Fees.

A suit has been instituted in the Superior Court against Eric Anschlag, the Garden Grove murderer, by Attorney Frederick McGregor, who defended the notorious murderer during his trial in this city. In the complaint filed it is alleged that Anschlag assigned his interest in all moneys coming to him from Europe to his counsel. The services that have been rendered were estimated to be worth $1500, but the lawyer voluntarily agreed to pay $2000. Of this he has paid only $150, leaving a balance due and claimed of $1850. Some few hundred dollars are at the present time lying in the bank to Anschlag's credit, and this deposit has been garnished by the plaintiff in the present suit. Anschlag received two letters from his brother in Belfast, on Thursday, the purpose of which was that the remainder of his money should be sent to him, and that he need not expect to receive any further communication from his family, as they wished to have nothing more to do with him.
